The history of the Icelanders is a little known piece of Nova Scotia's rich heritage. The Log Cabin at Markland tells the poignant story of these hard working settlers who struggled to eke out a living in the wilderness community of Markland from 1875-1882. It also recounts the endeavors of the Icelandic Memorial Society of Nova Scotia in bringing this story to light as they take on the challenge of building a log cabin in the old settlement of Markland.
